Contract Renewal Reminder Log

One unified register of contracts, with the notice deadline worked out for each contract, a separate reminder log, and a summary of decisions due.

Organisation: _____

Log owner: _____

Review rhythm: _____

Date this log was last reviewed: _____

How the notice deadline works For each contract, the date that matters is the notice deadline, not the end date. The notice deadline is the end date minus the notice period. If notice to end or change a contract must be given before that deadline and it is missed, the contract may continue on its existing terms. Record the notice deadline for every contract, sort the register by notice deadline, and review the log on the rhythm stated above, so that decisions are made before deadlines pass. When notice is given, keep a dated copy of the notice and record it in the reminder log, in the form the contract requires.

Reminder and action log Use this log for every reminder, review, and notice relating to a contract in the register. One entry per action, in date order. This log is the evidence that a deadline was acted on in time.

Date of the action	Contract reference	Action taken	Decision reached, if any	Next step	Next step due
[Date of the action]	[Contract reference]	[Action taken]	[Decision reached]	[Next step]	[Due date for the next step]

[Date of the action]	[Contract reference]	[Action taken]	[Decision reached]	[Next step]	[Due date for the next step]

Decisions due At each review, list here every contract whose notice deadline falls before the next review, and record the decision for each one: renew on existing terms, renegotiate, replace, or end. A contract with no decision recorded before its notice deadline is an open risk, not a decision to continue.

Contract reference	Notice deadline	Decision required	Decision maker	Decision date
[Contract reference]	[Notice deadline for the contract]	[Decision required]	[Full name of the decision maker]	[Date of the decision]
